

PREDICTION AS TO INSURANCE

Former Commissioner Of Insurance Says Stringent Laws Must Be Passed.

ATTACKS FRATERNAL COMPANIES

Says Crisis Will Come Within Three Years Unless Some Radical Changes Are Made Relative To Their Government And Control.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9.—Zeno M. Host, a former Wisconsin commissioner of insurance, today predicted the failure within the next three years of many of the leading fraternal life insurance organizations of the country unless the different states require by law the collection of adequate rates. He says the insurance laws should provide for a punishment of the insurance organizations which collect assessments in insolvent companies. This should be the same as laws now provide for punishment of bankers who take deposits when they know their bank is insolvent.

ACETYLENE GAS TANK CAUSE OF AWFUL HORROR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9.—As the result of an explosion of acetylene gas last night, the home of Fred Niebuhr is in ashes, his baby burned to death and himself, wife, two sons and hired man terribly burned. The gas plant lighted the Niebuhr farm house in town of Burke, near here. Last night the plant balked and Niebuhr took a lantern and went to the acetylene in the cellar to see what was the trouble and make repairs, when it exploded.

BELOIT WON GAME IN LAST MINUTE

Collette's Kicking and Osborne's Touchdown Too Much For Knox Players.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 9.—Beloit's victory over Knox by a score of 6 to 5 last Saturday was a fair illustration of the importance of having a good kicker on the team.

Osborne was not placed in the game until during the last ten minutes of play but his presence was felt momentarily. Up to this point, neither team could claim any special honors as to the game they were playing. Knox had scored for touchdown in the first ten minutes of play but Beamon, their big fullback, kicked wide in his attempt to make the goal. Both teams had exchanged points a number of times, but during the first half Beloit was playing largely on the defensive owing to numerous fumbles. Quartersback Mond was playing a splendid game and gave two or three exhibitions of the best kicking that has been seen on the local gridiron this season, but twice, when Beloit seemed to be slowly pushing the ball toward Knox goal, he attempted kicks from placement which fell flat and lessened Beloit's chances for a goal.

Prospects, which had begun to look pretty dark for Beloit, although Knox was not playing a superior game, assumed a decidedly different hue when Osborne was sent in to run the team. The ball was slowly approaching Knox goal when Collette was called for an unaided kick. Collette is not a young kicker but he is certainly a rule and his kicks are accurately judged. The playhead bounded just inside the fifteen yard line and Osborne, getting away from Quartersback West of the Knox eleven, carried the ball over the line and placed it safely between the poles. Collette then kicked a clear goal and won the game with only one minute left to play. Score 6 to 5.

Although the outcome of the game was perfectly satisfactory, Coach Foster of Beloit was dissatisfied slightly with some of his team's playing. The ends were a little slow in getting down on their opponents at times. "Neck-tie" tackling was responsible for large gains by Knox.

IDENTIFY FLOATER AS JANESVILLE MAN

Rockford Authorities Discover That Body Found in River is That of Former Janesville Workman.

Rockford authorities have secured the identification of the corpse they found floating in the river below Rockford Friday last as that of W. K. White, who was employed up to two weeks ago as a cooper at the Rock County Sugar Company. Chief of Police Appleby received word from the Rockford authorities Saturday night that the body was identified and asked to investigate the report he had considerable money on his person when he disappeared. He learned that White came to Janesville from Chicago and lived at Mrs. Allen Howard's boarding-house on Jerome street while in the city. His former home had been in the east. For two weeks previous to his leaving Janesville two weeks ago today he had been drinking heavily and in fact borrowed money to go to Chicago with. It is thought he committed suicide by jumping in the river at Rockford. He was fifty-eight years of age.

ROOSEVELT CHOSE NEPHEW OF JANESVILLE MAN

As Companion on His Hunting Trip Through Africa—Many Applicants.

Edmund Heller, who has been chosen by President Roosevelt as his companion on his African hunting trip, is a nephew of C. J. Schutte of this city. Mr. Heller was born in this section of the country, later moving to California where he attended Stanford University. While doing some work for the Field Columbian Museum about a year ago, Mr. Heller made his Janesville relatives a short visit.

Hammered and Deserted: C. Heller, who lives nine miles north of Janesville and 2 miles east of Indian Ford, visited Janesville this morning to have a "hot responsibility" inserted in the paper regarding his wife. He alleges that she struck him in the head with a hammer last Wednesday, crushing in a small section of the skull over the right ear, and they separated. They have two children, aged 17 and 14 years. Mr. Heller says that the assault was entirely without provocation.

LORD MAYOR'S SHOW IN CITY OF LONDON

Crowds of Unemployed and Suffragettes Take Advantage of Big Pageant.

London, Nov. 9.—The unemployed turned out in considerable force this morning to take part in the celebration of Lord Mayor's day, and the procession was marked by some unusual scenes. Crowds of workmen and women were massed at prominent points along the route of the parade and here and there were bands of suffragettes distributing their literature, but these demonstrations, however, were entirely orderly, and outside of keeping the Germans from breaking over the sidewalks into the roadway the forces of metropolitan police that were massed along the route had little or nothing to do.

The procession was exceedingly spectacular, though in all its essential features and in the chief ceremonies that followed, the program was identical with that carried out each year on November 9 from time immemorial. The general scheme of the pageant was symbolic of literature and music, in recognition of the fact that Sir George Trevelyan, the new Lord Mayor, is a prominent member of the Stationers' and Musicians' companies.

The procession followed the customary route to the Law Courts, where the new Lord Mayor was formally received by the Lord Chancellor. Thence by a different route the pageant wound its way through the crowded thoroughfares back to the Guildhall where the customary Lord Mayor's banquet is held this evening, and at which the foremost men in public life will be the speakers.

Sir George Trevelyan, the new chief magistrate of London, is fifty-one years old. He became alderman in 1895 and sheriff in 1902. He is prominent in commercial life, being the head of a large firm of printers and manufacturing stationers, and also identified with numerous other companies. He is possessed of immense wealth and will hardly need the salary of $25,000 he will receive for his services of one year as Lord Mayor.

Beloit, Nov. 9.—Sometime after midnight Saturday night, A. L. Smiley's bakery on Grand avenue was entered by thieves and $15 in loose change was taken from the cash drawer.

Entrance to the store was effected by breaking through the transom window at the rear of the bakery. The burglar left no clue.

Ernest Bechler, the young man whom Chief of Police Schuttebent went to Sparta to arrest, is not the man wanted for the robbery of $105 from a trunk belonging to Margaret Garry and her sister, in a Broad street boarding house. The young ladies testified that Frank Bechler was not the man who committed the act, but his brother, Frank, who much resembles him. The whereabouts of Frank Bechler are unknown to his brother, Ernest, the one arrested, admitted being in the city at the time of the robbery.

WORKINGMEN OF AMERICA GATHER IN CONVENTION

Twenty-Eighth Annual Convention Of The American Federation Of Labor.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Denver, Colo., Nov. 9.—In the Denver Auditorium, where the democratic hosts assembled last July and named William J. Bryan for president, there were gathered this morning hundreds of representatives of the workingmen of America. They were the delegates to the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor and among them was represented every trade and every industry of the United States. It was an assemblage of hawkeye, blue-collar, and white-collar representatives of the laboring and manufacturing classes of the United States, and the most interesting paragraphs of the address were those dealing with the participation of the laborer in the recent campaign and election. Injunctions, the boycott, eight-hour legislation and undesirable immigration were treated at considerable length and in Mr. Gompers' customary vigorous style. The spread of child labor legislation was commended and the delegates were urged to renewed efforts in the work of organizing labor and disseminating labor propaganda.

Promptly at 10 o'clock President Samuel Gompers mounted the platform, accompanied by the other officers of the Federation, members of the executive committee and fraternal delegates representing the Western Federation of Miners and the organized labor bodies of Canada and Great Britain. The appearance of President Gompers was greeted with loud and prolonged cheers, many of the delegates rising and continuing the enthusiastic greeting for several minutes. After about half an hour of welcome were expressed in behalf of the state of Colorado, the city of Denver and the labor unions of the municipality, and appropriate responses were made by President Gompers and several of the delegates. The annual address of President Gompers was the chief feature of the opening day's proceedings. The address was one of considerable length. Though it required more than two hours in its delivery the delegates manifested not the slightest sign of impatience and gave it close attention from beginning to end. The salient points of the address were greeted with loud applause, and when Mr. Gompers had finished he received a hearty ovation. Naturally the most interesting paragraphs of the address were those dealing with the participation of the laborer in the recent campaign and election. Injunctions, the boycott, eight-hour legislation and undesirable immigration were treated at considerable length and in Mr. Gompers' customary vigorous style. The spread of child labor legislation was commended and the delegates were urged to renewed efforts in the work of organizing labor and disseminating labor propaganda.

Trial of Cases Will Be Commenced Tomorrow—Decision in Police Cases.

This afternoon the jurors drawn for the October term were examined as to their qualification to serve and for different reasons eleven out of the thirty-six were excused. The judge decided not to issue a special venire as the cases were short and it was expected that they could all be tried this week. When the calendar was called it was found that the cases set for trial this afternoon, had been settled and no others were ready for trial. The court accordingly took a recess until tomorrow morning at nine o'clock.

END OF FAMOUS DEBT QUESTION IN SIGHT

First Formal Hearing of Important State Case to Be Before C. E. Littlefield.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9.—After dragging along for years the end of the famous Virginia-West Virginia debt question is now in sight. Eminent counsel representing the two states assembled here today for the first formal hearing in the case before Chief Justice Littlefield of Maine, who has been appointed master in the proceedings. The Virginia-West Virginia debt dispute arose out of the creation of the state of West Virginia out of the original domain of Virginia, and the proper apportionment of the then bonded indebtedness of the latter state. A suit is pending before the United States supreme court, and upon the ultimate report of the master, Mr. Littlefield, depends the adjudication of the matter. Just what amount is involved cannot even be estimated. The original one-third which the Virginia contestants set apart as the portion of West Virginia was between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000.

The settlement of the amount of interest to be paid is one of the most important features of the suit.

TAKEN ON CHARGE OF STEALING RIG

Chimney Cleaner and Outfit Wanted in Milwaukee Felt Into Hands of Police This Morning.

About ten o'clock this morning Chief Appleby received a telephone message from the head of the Milwaukee police department to the effect that a dark eight year old "maro" and delivery wagon belonging to J. S. Gassney, had been stolen by an individual 45 years old, 5 ft. 6 inches in height, weighing 200 pounds and answering to the name of Edward Gray, and that the outfit was believed to be somewhere in this vicinity. Not long thereafter Officer John Brown saw a rig answering the description on River street. In company with Chief Appleby at 11:30 he traced the outfit to the rear of the old cotton mills. The man in charge of the rig admitted that his name was Gray and that he had a companion were in the business of cleaning chimneys. He was at once placed under arrest and the outfit which had been pulled over the sides of the vehicle were removed, the name of the owner, Gassney, and announcement of his line of business were revealed. The rig was routed for a trip into the country 23 days ago, and was traced to Edgerton last evening. An officer from Milwaukee will be here tonight to take charge of Gray.

INSTALLATION OF

A NEW PASTOR

REVEREND J. C. HAZEN IS OFFI-CIALLY MADE PASTOR OF BAPTIST CHURCH.

STRONG SERMON GIVEN

Dr. T. L. Kelman Preaches, Taking as

His Text Paul's Letter to Timothy.

Last evening at the Baptist church

Rev. T. L. Kelman, D. D., of Chicago

preached the sermon of installation for the new minister, Reverend J. C.

Hazen. The topic of the sermon was

"A Man Among Men." In the sermon Rev. Kelman spoke of the good qualities in Mr. Hazen.

There was an unusually large audience present to hear the sermon. The text was taken from Paul's letter to Timothy, the second epistle to Timothy. The first part of the sermon given last evening was devoted to the text, "A Man Among Men," and the second part dealt with Hazen, A Man

Among Men.

In his letter to Timothy, Paul refers to the faith which Timothy has in God, dwelling first in his grandmother, Luke, and his mother, Eunice, and which Paul is assured is in Timothy also. Paul called on Timothy to strive up this gift of God which was in him. There is something very beautiful in this epistle. Paul is like an old warhorse, urging on Timothy to remember his noble ancestry.

He exhorts the position of the Christian man in the world.

He goes further and says, he a workman and partake of the afflictions of the Gospel according to the power of God, he not ashamed of the testimony of the Lord, nor of Paul. The Lord has called us according to his own purpose and grace and not according to our own wisdom. He goes higher and speaks of the wisdom of God, which is made manifest by the coming of Christ who brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel and who has abolished death. The man of God has to suffer many things, nevertheless, Paul says, I am not ashamed.

Coming to the last chapter Paul reaches another high point and says to Timothy to preach the Word of God, he is instant in season, reprove, rebuke, and exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine.

This picture of the old warhorse speaking to the younger, is really beautiful and the likeness grows truly sublime when the old man speaks to the younger and shows Timothy his own record for an example to follow.

It is wonderful for a man who has been so many years in the ministry.

In thinking of Paul as a man among men we must first consider him as a man of doctrine. Not the doctrines as are held by the various churches at the present time but the true Christian doctrines that are taught in all the churches. We say that a man who faith that has ever been given. He says, it is the substance of things hoped for and the evidence of things unseen.

Paul tells us how to get faith. We get faith through our hearing and reading the Word of God. The men and women in the world who have faith and not a mark to accomplish things are the ones who do them.

Paul was not only a man of doctrine, soundness in his manner of living and of faith, but he was a man of long-suffering and charity. He was truly a large hearted man. His field was so large that it was all that he could do to tend to his charge, yet he found time to write these epistles to the other disciples and workers and especially to the ones who had been but a short time in the service. He was a living witness before the people and warned them day and night almost to remain true to God. The man who preaches the Gospel must be a large-hearted man and a man of love.

Patience was another quality in the make-up of Paul. The cause of so many failures on the part of preachers and men of the world as well, is because they are lacking in this quality. They start a thing and can not carry it through. Paul was quick whipped, imprisoned, stoned, shipwrecked and had to bear the thorn in the flesh because the other disciples denied his apostleship. This was the greatest cross for him to bear, yet none of these things moved him and he pressed forth to the end of the race.

It is no wonder that Paul possessed such power for bringing men to Christ.

My greatest wish for the members of this church is that when each one of you comes to the close of his life as an individual, and as a Christian that each one of you may be able to say as Paul said, "Thou hast known my doctrine; Thou hast known my number of life, my purpose, faith, long suffering, charity, and patience; do thou likewise."

Brother Hazen, My last word to you is that you may be faithful in the work which God has given you in this church, this city, and in His kingdom.

May you be a man of doctrine to preach true Christianity to these people. May you be a man of purpose to accomplish the work which is given to you. May you be a man of faith to set a high mark and to accomplish great things through this faith and by striking hard. May you also be a man of love, long-suffering and long-suffering and possessing the patience which we find in the lives of Paul and of our dear Savior.

Mr. Kelman closed the services of installation by a devout prayer asking the Lord that Rev. Hazen might be as great and successful in his work as Paul had been in his.

WELL PLEASED WITH

ROAD TO YESTERDAY

Fair Sized Audience Witnessed Presentation of Comedy-Fantasy at the Theatre Saturday.

Occidental, theosophy, and herodally are interesting subjects to combine with and a fair sized audience at the Myers (Theatre) Saturday, found "The Road to Yesterday" pleasant traveling, even though the journey offered nothing deeply impressive or convincing.

The comedy fantasy is by the Myers.
Dentah, M. D. and Evelyn Greenleaf

Sutherland and the plot revolves about a Midsummer Night's which by one

Elspeth Tyrell who is "doing England," in the tourist sense, and has become surcharged with medieval lore, that she might be transported back to the days "When Knighthood Was in Flower." The wish is fulfilled in a dream and the scene shifts from a London studio of the year 1903, where a gay party of bohemians had been sipping tea and boasting of their former incognitions, to the England of James I.

In accordance with her wishes, the leading character, finds herself the heroine of the story, but her "little life" is hardly "rounded with a song," just as anticipated. She is scrubbing the floor in the Red Swan Inn. The artist who had laughed himself to be a reprobation of Oliver Cromwell, is a put-back; the servant "Nora" is an old witch; the young lady who had been a queen, is a serving maid; another one of her old associates is a Gypsy queen; Jack Greenleaf, the lover, is a student who had clashed with the dean of the college for the fun of surprising the dean, is a simple young man; and so on.

It appears presently that the heroine has run away from her guardian, Lord

Stranger, who, who has determined to marry his wealthy ward against her wishes, and that she is in disguise as a servant in the inn. When she has been captured and taken back to the castle, she finds in the wicked earl the same Knecht Runkel whom Glenor, in the studio scene, had wanted to love but could not trust because of vague and unknown something which she could not fathom.

This serious motif is never carried out to logical conclusion. For, in the

GREAT DRAMATIST OF FRANCE DEAD

VICTORIEN SARDOU DIES AT THE AGE OF 77 YEARS.

FAMOUS THE WORLD OVER

Sketch of the Long Career in Which He Won Honors and Wealth
by Writing Plays.

Paris, Nov. 9.—Victorien Sardou, who had been ill for a long time, died Sunday from pulmonary congestion. He was the dean of French dramatists and a member of the French Academy.

The man whose first play was hissed and who then wanted to go to America to seek his fortune, died rich and honored, with the proud title of France's greatest and most prolific contemporary dramatist.

Victorien Sardou was a man possessed of singular charm and was greatly beloved, and there is universal regret that he left no memoirs. He was born in Paris, September 7, 1831, the son of Leonie Sardou, an educationalist and compiler of several publications. At first he studied medicine, but was obliged, in consequence of the embarrassments of his family to give private lessons in history, philosophy and mathematics. He also made attempts in literature, writing articles for several reviews and for the minor journals.

His First Play a Failure.
His first comedy, "La Taverne des Etudiants," was produced in 1854 in the Odéon, then the second state theater, but it proved a complete failure. He then wrote the comedy, "Les Pattes de Mouche," which was produced with great success in 1859, and subsequently adapted for the English stage under the title of "A Scrap of Paper."

At the age of 75 Sardou witnessed the production of his latest drama, "L'Affaire des Polons," at the Porte St. Martin theater. This play, which has to do with the infamous poisoning of the czar of Russia, and which was presented for the first time on December 7 last, is still running to crowded houses.

Married His Benefactress.
In the year 1857 M. Sardou was in a state of abject poverty and extreme distress. He was living in a garret and was prostrated by typhoid fever, but a neighbor, Mlle. de Breceort, nursed him with tender care during his illness, from which he slowly recovered. He married her in the following year and was by her introduced to Mlle. de Jazet, who had just established the theater which was named after her. M. Sardou's earlier pieces, after his first failure, were performed at this theater. Nine years after his marriage M. Sardou was in possession of a handsome fortune and a European renown, when a gloom was temporarily cast over his career by the death of his wife.

Almost every hand knows the stage heroes and heroines born out of Sardou's resourceful mind. Mme. Bernhardt has won her greatest triumphs in roles he wrote for her, such as Tosca, Fedora, Theodora and Cleopatra. "Mme. Sans Gêne" was written for Mme. Ugalde, in which she portrayed the outspoken, good-hearted wife of Marshal Laveure. It was translated into English and Mr. Henry Irving and Miss Terry were seen in it at the Lyceum. The great English actor also appeared in "Robespierre" and other products of the genius of the master Frenchman.

M. Sardou realized a princely fortune by his writings and built a splendid chateau at Marly-le-Roi. He married, on June 17, 1872, Mlle. Soulier, daughter of the conservator of the Museum of Versailles. He was decorated with the Legion of Honor in 1893 and was elected a member of the French Academy in 1877.

RACE RIOT CASES RESUMED.

Raymer Put on Trial for Destroying Springfield Property.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 9.—Trial of the race riot cases was resumed Monday when Alvin Raymer, acquitted of murder, was placed on trial for destruction of property. These trials were halted when Judge Creighton challenged the entire petit jury list and the jury box was purged of all names, it being contended that fair trials were impossible. A special session of the board of supervisors resulted in a new jury list being chosen. Prominent business men were called upon for jury service.

Patrons of Husbandry to Meet.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Three thousand farmers bailing from 30 states will meet in this city on Wednesday next, when the National Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, assemble for its forty-second annual convention. GOVERNORS ARE INVITED ANOTHER CONFERENCE ON RE- SOURCES TO BE HELD.

State Executives Will Meet in Washington December 8—Other Conservational Sessions.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Invitations to a second meeting in Washington of the governors or their representatives have been sent out by the National Conservation of Resources commission. The date announced is Tuesday, December 8.

At the same time letters are going out announcing for Tuesday, December 1, the first general meeting of the conservation commission itself for organization. Both these meetings are the outgrowth of the White House conference of governors last May at which the conservation movement was launched.

At the forthcoming meeting the governors will discuss the work which the National Conservation commission has been carrying on during the summer and fall. The outcome of this work is the first thorough inventory of the nation's natural resources the federal government has ever made. The inventory is now practically complete, and most of the summaries on the waters, forests, lands and minerals of the United States have been handed in by the experts, who have been steadily at work on them for nearly five months.

The week beginning December 6 will be a conservation week in Washington, bringing together many representative men from all parts of the country. There will be at least four important bodies in session here whose purposes are connected with the conservation movement. Besides the meeting of the governors with the National Conservation commission, the Country Life commission will hold a meeting after having completed the first part of its swing around the country. The Southern Commercial congress, whose chief purpose is the awakening of the people of the 14 southern states to the value of their natural resources, will be in session on December 7 and 8 and will then merge with the National Rivers and Harbors congress, which will hold its annual meeting December 9 to 11.

CUBAN ELECTIONS SATURDAY.

President Will Be Chosen—Troops to Retire January 23.

Havana, Nov. 9.—On Saturday next elections will be held throughout the island for president, vice-president, senators and representatives in the lower house of congress, to whom, according to the present program, will be committed the fate of the restored Cuban republic on the termination of the government of intervention, January 23, 1909.

The troops of the United States will be withdrawn on that date, which is three days in advance of the date originally set, in order that their departure may mark the anniversary of the birth of Jose Marti, the Cuban patriot, and the great body of Cubans have striven during the last few months towards a selection of a candidate who will best realize their desire for self-government.

Preparations for the election are now complete. All of the election officers have been appointed, the electoral boards organized and the last ballots distributed, and the whole island is absorbed in the outcome of the struggle for supremacy. The conservatives are headed by Gen. Mario Menocal and Dr. Rafael Montoro, the presidential and vice-presidential candidates, respectively, while Gen. Jose M. Gomez and his former rival in the party leadership, Alfredo Zayas, are the nominees of the liberal party, the Miguelista and Zayista factions of which finally united their forces in support of Gen. Gomez, on the understanding that he would not be nominated for a second term.

Then the burglars bound Mr. Tayntor hand and foot and escaped with their booty.

TAFT'S RELIGION HIS OWN CONCERN

PRESIDENT'S SPIRITED REPLY TO MANY INQUIRERS.

BIGOTRY IS WELL SCORED

Chief Executive Says That Opposition to Any Candidate Because of His Creed Is an Outrage.

Washington, Nov. 9.—"Mr. Taft's religious faith is purely his own private concern and not a matter for general discussion and political discrimination," says President Roosevelt in a letter he made public Sunday night in which he answers numerous correspondents. The president says he deterred the publication of the letter until now to avoid any agitation likely to influence the election.

Written to Ohio Man.

The letter, which is dated November 6, is addressed to J. C. Martin of Dayton, O., and says in part:

"I received many such letters as yours during the campaign, expressing dissatisfaction with Mr. Taft on religious grounds; some of them on the ground that he was a Unitarian, and others on the ground that he was suspected to be in sympathy with Catholics. I did not answer any of these letters during the campaign because I regarded it as an outrage even to agitate such a question as a man's religious convictions, with the purpose of influencing a political election. But now that the campaign is over, when there is opportunity for men calmly to consider whether such propositions as those you make in your letter would lead, I wish to invite them to consider them, and I have selected your letter to answer because you advance both the objections commonly urged against Mr. Taft, namely: that he is a Unitarian and also that he is suspected of sympathy with the Catholics."

Mr. Taft's Own Private Concern.

"You ask that Mr. Taft shall 'let the world know what his religious belief is.' This is purely his own private concern; and it is a matter between him and his Maker, a matter for his own conscience, and to require it to be made public under penalty of political discrimination is to negative the first principles of our government, which guarantee complete religious liberty, and the right to each man to act in religious affairs as his own conscience dictates. Mr. Taft never asked my advice in the matter, but if he had asked it, I should have emphatically advised him against thus stating publicly his religious belief."

"To discriminate against a thoroughly upright citizen because he belongs to some particular church, or because, like Abraham Lincoln, he has not avowed his allegiance to any church, is an outrage against that liberty of conscience which is one of the foundations of American life. You are entitled to know whether a man seeking your suffrage is a man of clean and upright life, honorable in all his dealings with his fellow-men, and fit by qualification and purpose to do well in the great office for which he is a candidate; but you are not entitled to know matters which lie purely between himself and his Maker."

No Cause for Criticism.

"If it is proper or legitimate to oppose a man for being a Unitarian, as was John Quincy Adams, for instance, as is now Edward Everett Hale, at the present moment chaplain of the senate, and an American of whose life all good Americans are proud, then it would be equally proper to support or oppose a man because of his views on justification by faith, or the method of administering the sacrament, or the gospel of salvation by works. If you once enter on such a career there is absolutely no limit to which you can legitimately stop."

"So much for your objections to Mr. Taft because he is a Unitarian. Now, for your objections to him because you think his wife and brother to be Roman Catholics. As it happens, they are not; but if they were, or if he were a Roman Catholic himself, it ought not to affect in the slightest degree any man's supporting him for the position of president."

Slander of Americans.

"You say that the mass of the voters that are not Catholics will not support a man for any office, especially for president of the United States, who is a Roman Catholic. I believe that when you say this you foully slander your fellow countrymen. I do not for one moment believe that the mass of our fellow citizens, or that any considerable number of our fellow citizens, can be influenced by such narrow bigotry as to refuse to vote for any thoroughly upright and fit man because he happens to have a particular religious creed. Such a consideration should never be treated as a reason for either supporting or opposing a candidate for a political office. Are you aware that there are several states in this union where the majority of the people are now Catholics? I should reprobate in the severest terms the Catholics in those states (or in any states) who refused to vote for the most fit man because he happened to be a Protestant; and my condemnation would be exactly as severe for Protestants who, under reversed circumstances, refused to vote for a Catholic."

Then He Complains.

Many a man never knows just what he doesn't want until he gets it.

FOES OF RUM TO GATHER

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE CONFER-ENCE AT DES MOINES.

Nine Middle Western States Will Be Represented There by About 1,000 Delegates.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 9.—A thousand delegates from nine states in the middle west will assemble in Des Moines Tuesday for a conference of the central district of the American Anti-Saloon league, which includes Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Minnesota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado.

One of the chief matters for discussion will be preparation for a new campaign to secure in congress the enactment of the interstate commerce act, for which a fight has been made many years without success, and whose defeat at the last session of congress was held at the door of Speaker Cannon and used against him in his recent contest for re-election.

There will also be some discussion of the legislative policies of the league in the different states and in this connection, also, some debate on the relative merits of the prohibition and local option laws. There are within the league many superintendents and field workers who believe local option a more effective weapon against the liquor traffic than prohibitory laws, and there are also many who stand strongly for absolute, state-wide prohibition.

Much interest attaches to the expected attendance of Gov. Hantley of Indiana, where the temperance issue was one of the factors in the recent campaign. National Superintendent P. A. Baker of Ohio is to have a place on the program, which will also be participated in by the superintendents in the various states in the district. The conference will continue three days.

HIS PRISON TERM ENDED.

Lewis Warner, Convicted Massachusetts Banker, Free Again.

Doston, Nov. 9.—Lewis Warner, a former banker and manufacturer of Northampton, and at one time known in political circles throughout Massachusetts, was released Monday from the state prison, where he has been serving a sentence of nine years for misappropriating the funds of the Hampshire Savings bank of that city.

Speculation was the cause of Warner's downfall. In April, 1898, Warner sold, leaving a shortage of $340,000 in the Hampshire Savings bank, of which he was treasurer, and Hampshire County National bank, of which he was president. Both institutions closed their doors. The savings bank was never reopened, but months later the national bank was reorganized.

Signed,
HARRY S. HAGGART,
C. H. GAGE,
STANLEY B. WOODRUFF,
L. M. BROWNELL,
W. E. BEIRENDT,
Judges.

At the stroke of ten last Saturday night the judges selected to canvass the returns of the Gazette's European and Diamond contest took possession of the ballot box and the great battle of ballots was at an end. For the first time in several weeks the candidates who were dead in earnest—and the final score shows who they were—were allowed the satisfaction of knowing the fruits of their campaign and enjoyed the pleasant sensation of being declared victorious over a long list of competitors.

Very few people imagined that the score would nearly reach the half million mark. Surely no contestant—except Mr. Fisher—could have set the high vote at that figure or they would have reached it.

The winners were in most cases those who never stopped until the clock tolled the closing hour. Mrs. Eva Cannon, who was stood in fifth or sixth place almost throughout the struggle, by consistent and tireless effort carried away the honors in her district, beating out candidates who had been picked by many as sure winners. Mrs. U. G. Miller, by a magnificent campaign the last two weeks not only won first prize in her list but for a while was considered a dangerous contender for the grand prize. Mrs. Chas. Kilmer made a hard fight and was returned winner of the second prize in her district over a long list of very fine candidates. Mrs. Malbon succeeded in carrying away second honors in the ladies' list in the city, defeating Miss Estelle Muehlenschlaeder by a very narrow margin. David B. Griffin and W. T. Flaherty were the victors in the gentlemen's list in the city. Mr. Fisher was given a close run by Mr. Carl Brockhaus.

The honors which go with the prizes as a testimonial of esteem from their many friends and as a mark of distinction for their aggressive and determined campaign will have to be shared by the winners with the unsuccessful contenders, many of whom set the pace until near the finish. To the candidates who tried hard and failed is extended the sympathy and admiration of everyone. It was one of the proudest contests ever witnessed by the contest men in charge. The leaders were continually changing. First one, then another, would forge to the front and the final result was always in doubt. There was never a sign of ill feeling displayed at any time and no one has a regret to offer. All in all it was a most satisfactory contest. The Gazette cannot feel anything but pleased at the outcome as it accomplished what it started out to do—to put on a large number of new subscribers—and thus give the business man—the advertiser—still more for his money. He is the final beneficiary. We wish to thank the gentlemen who so kindly acted as judges and rendered such valuable service to the Gazette and to the candidates and their friends all over this vicinity. It was through the accuracy and the systematic methods of these gentlemen that the count was finished in time for the candidates who lived in the city to reach their homes before midnight.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST.

Fair tonight and probably Tuesday, not much change in temperature.

"WATERED LABOR"

"During the past campaign a great deal was said about 'watered capital.' Nobody, however, developed the courage to talk about 'watered labor.'"

"When a plant worth $100,000 is capitalized for $1,000,000, it is correct to say that $900,000 of that capitalization is water. The stock market will attend to squeezing out the water, that being one of its most valuable functions, and if the plant is well run and improved out of earnings, the water can be replaced by tangible capital, as, for instance, it has been largely in the case of the United States Steel corporation. If in the erection of that $100,000 plant a labor union exacts by combination $3.50 a day for unskilled labor worth $1.50, the remaining $2 is water. Every cent paid to a workman above the value of the work he creates is water. He is in fact doing the very thing on which is based the chief complaint against capital."

"Not much more than a year ago, organized labor did not allow a bricklayer to lay more than 700 bricks a day. A very good man can lay 1,800. There are more bricklayers than jobs for them now, and the same bricklayer or today who was laying 700 bricks is now probably laying 1,400. The difference between the 700 and the 1,400 is water. It is a charge made for wealth not created. Bad work, cheap work, lazy work, unskillful work, willfully slow work, all of them constitute water upon which the rest of us work to pay dividends. This applies not merely to organized labor, but to all workers, professional, business and others who demand and receive more than they earn."

"Nothing is really more injurious to the workman than what is called 'C'annery.' It is the embodiment of the fallacy that the workman benefits by doing as little work as possible, and thereby forcing the employment of more hands. Everybody is injured by that practice, and nobody more than the workman himself. The fact can be stated with mathematical precision. If fifty workmen are employed on a job which really only requires twenty-five, the extra twenty-five are consuming wealth which otherwise could be used to employ more labor. If on the other hand twenty-five men are employed on the job and given their best efforts, thereby producing more than they consume, they are creating wealth, which must be employed in other labor, and will ultimately employ far more than the unnecessary twenty-five who were 'soldiering' on the original job."

"During the boom labor had something of a security value, and naturally the workman, through his union, made what he thought was the best bargain for himself. It became thereby one of the most important contributory causes for the panic. The workman, and he principally, can restore boom times by the creation of new wealth. The capital to run a great boom is simply the surplus of created wealth over that part of it which must be consumed to maintain the producer. It is the employment of such wealth which finances the boom, and it is the absorption of this wealth in fixed forms, or its waste by fire, flood, war, or other causes, which checks the boom and produces the panic. In the long period following a world panic when such wealth has to be recreated, the workman, union or otherwise, has an admirable opportunity to study elementary economics."

This plain and intelligent statement, from the Wall Street Journal has to do with a side of the labor question not often considered. While the claim is frequently made that the organized labor trust is the worst combination with which the country has to deal, the element of "water" which enters into it is not fully appreciated.

It is a sorry comment on the national government to say that the present administration is responsible for encouraging this kind of watered stock, by demanding an 8-hour day for all government employees, and making it a penalty for contractors to permit a man to work overtime.

The Hayes Bros. of Janesville, who have a federal contract in the Dakotas, are experiencing trouble with this silly and nonsensical law. Any man of ordinary intelligence knows that the right to toil in any field where opportunity presents, is a God-given right, and the same degree of intelligence should suggest that any restriction of hours or output, is a curb to ambition, resulting in making a man a machine. There are too many machine-made men in the ranks of organized labor.

WHERE ARE WE AT?

The following candid recognition of conditions, by "the only democratic paper in the First Congressional district," is worth reproducing and should be studied with profit by a democratized democracy. The question is asked, "Where are we at?" and this is the answer:

"Just the same as we were yesterday, the day before yesterday and so on back where we sat down. The question is, will we ever arise? Perhaps, but it will be a Rip Van Winkle wait, no doubt; the way things look. Stung again, you say, exactly so, brother, with the barbs sticking straight out, peeling the vitals at every jump. The old saying, 'Look before you jump,' should have been mottos of bank guarantees tied to the tail of the weakened beast, it ran pell mell into the hardened side of the great elephant, where it fell."

"The elephant stepped lightly over the donkey, by diligent training of many years. The donkey will pull through and will take on flesh, by careful diet and surgical skill, and probably after four years of patient grooming will begin to prance, and flop its ears and get gay."

"The donkey, however, is troubled with socialism, idolism, and Jacksonism and before the beast can be of any use it must have a new pedigree, a task which can only be fashioned by wise and careful research into old-time democratic standards. Will the new pedigree be forthcoming? We have four years to put new power into that decrepit old beast, that at times carried us to victory. We ask the donkey's pardon for the fool humorized more perfectly. The donkey looked perfectly healthy, and robust, at that, but the giant tread of that old weather-bound elephant with mammoth tusks, and horny hide caused the donkey to nuzzle close to government ownership. Foraker, the down-trodden donkey, and the old tin dinner pail."

"The donkey surrounded by such hoary old relics of a bygone age began to droop and die, every injection given the poor beast by Tammany caused the donkey to tremble with fear, and every time Roger Sullivan looked at the poor beast's teeth the donkey suffered with pain."

"At last with the burden of publicity of donations, which caused his limbs to lack food, and the further dens it has had to carry."

"If it ever again sallies forth, endeavoring to reach the white house, it should only be sent forth with hardy principles, progressive Americanism, practical common sense, and the uplifting of all commercial life."

"No man will ever reach the presidential chair by attempting to do little or destroy commercialism, which is the life of the middle classes."

"Wm. Jennings Bryan was honest in his endeavors, and as a private citizen is an honor to our country, but twice before the people said they did not want him, twice had he been repudiated by the American people, but that was not enough for the water-brained idiot of the party."

"And now what of the future? The real democracy who stood for the party simply to hold it together, has had enough of the shush, after this it must have the filtered democracy, pure and undiluted. 'Off with the old and on with the new.'"

Heart to Heart Talks.

SAVE SOME MONEY, YOUNG MAN.

"Colored money is round in shape; therefore let it roll," says the spend-thrift.

"Colored money is flat in shape; therefore pile it up," says the miser.

Do you belong to the first class? Do you "flow" your money? Is your "roll" no larger than a week's wages? And you despise a "tight wand?"

Well—Maybe there is a halfway place, a reasonable compromise, between stinginess and selfishness. There is. It is the way of FRUGALITY.

"Money was made to spend—wisely. It was made to save—wisely. Economy is a real virtue. Thrift is a real blessing."

Suppose you should try to save, say, 25 per cent of your earnings?

It would not be easy. On every side are the pulls that tug at your purse strings. But if you are strong enough to make money you are strong enough to save it.

Saving is a wise policy because it provides READY CASH. And ready money talks! It spells opportunity.

The time may come when a little ready cash will set you up in business. The margin between success and failure often is the margin of a little capital.

John Wannmaker's first wages were just $1.20 per week. He saved part of it.

Old John Rockefeller shows his book where he put down his first earnings. Always there was THE MARGIN OF SAVING.

E. H. Harriman, son of a poor preacher, always spent less than he earned.

James A. Garfield taught school at $12 a week and saved money to take him through college.

Now—Real stinginess is next door to meanness, and greed may lead to graft.

But—Stinginess is one thing; prudence is another. Even a virtue may be carried to the extreme and become a vice.

Suppose you try saving regularly. The habit may make a man of you. Self reliance and self restraint are factors in character. There can be no manhood without self control.

Save a little money, young man. Get the habit. You will need the habit—and the money.

CUP QUALITY IN COFFEE

You don't care much whether the coffee berry you buy is large or small, rough or smooth. What you are particular about is the quality of the coffee in the cup. I buy my coffees on cup tests and I blend my coffees on cup test.

After years of handling coffees in the wholesale trade and after a thorough study of coffee I know this: that 9-10th of all coffee drinkers in this country have about the same taste for coffee, and I set to work to blend a coffee that would suit 9-10th of all the people of Janesville. The result is Golden Blend, blended from cup tests, a coffee that might be termed "Standard of taste." It is a blend of the highest grade Southern American coffees of excellent flavor.

To prove these statements let me say this: One-fifth of my present customers have been using Golden Blend for the past six years; one-fourth of all the homes in Janesville are now using Golden Blend. As the quality never varies I hope to sell them Golden Blend for the next twenty years. The trouble with most coffee is not so much in the coffee itself as it is in the blending and handling. The ordinary dealer knows very little more about coffee than the ordinary housewife. And why should he? He has not time to study blending, testing and selecting coffee, especially when he can take his salesman's word for whatever the salesman says:

I KNOW COFFEE. I don't say it in an egotistical sense at all. I have made it a special study for years. I am sure that Golden Blend will suit you.

If you will try a pound on my recommendation and it doesn't suit you exactly, I'll blend specially for you. I will blend in half-pound lots, and it won't cost you a cent until I have matched your taste. Then you will be suited for all time to come.

Call me up today.

PRISONERS MAY BE BROUGHT TO ROCK CO. JAIL

FORMER CHIEF OF POLICE AP-PLEBY TELLS OF DON-NERSTAGS.

ELDEST ONE WAS SHOT

Tried to Kill Chief Deputy United States Marshal Who Winged Him Neatly.

Hugo and Albert Donnerstag, two of the three alleged counterfeiters who escaped from the Madison battle Sunday night, Oct. 25, and who were recaptured near Rhineland last week, will probably be brought to the Rock county jail for safe keeping either today or tomorrow, according to Chief Deputy U. S. Marshal W. H. Appleby who was a visitor in this city over Sunday.

The three Donnerstags were first arrested at their home near Rhineland on August 12. In Rhineland's cabin, five miles from the old home, was found a mint for making $5, $10, $20, $25, and $50 gold coins and some $3,000 of the spurious pieces. They were manufactured on a fine and other pieces in combination and counter with gold which had been "swanted" with chemicals from good coins.

The account of the recapture, as given by Janesville's former chief of police, differs in several particulars from those heretofore published. It appears that the United States marshal and all of his force were attending court at La Crosse at the time the Donnerstags came through the iron window bars with a saw they had fashioned from a steel bed-spring and delivered themselves with a rope made from bed-clothing. The grand jury, in the meantime, had indicted Mrs. Hanna Donnerstag, the mother of the three men, and her daughter Clara. With warrants for the arrest of these two women in his pocket, Chief Deputy Appleby boarded the first train for Madison.

After looking about the Capital City jail for clues and finding none, he made his way to Rhineland and thence to the home of the Donnerstags, about eighteen miles from that city, where he took the two women into custody. They were taken to Madison and placed in jail.

On Saturday evening, Oct. 31, a message was received at Madison from the chief of police at Rhineland to the effect that the fugitives were at their old home in the woods. A wire was sent to Washington for permission to organize a posse, and this having been received, Chief Deputy Appleby and Deputy John Kelley of Menomonie, Wis., boarded a train for Rhineland and arrived there a week ago Sunday morning.

A Kenosha man named William C. Serrin, who was acquainted with the trio, had, in the meantime been sent out by the Rhineland chief of police to find out whether or not they intended to resist arrest. When he failed to return on Monday, the chief was much alarmed, fearing he had been killed, and that evening Marshal Appleby was starting for the depot to get a freight train which would carry him within a few miles of the spot, when he caught a glimpse of Hugo running down an alley. It is this Hugo who is alleged to have shot his own father and split his head open with an axe. Serrin had persuaded him to come to town and give himself up without a fight, but he evidently had changed his mind.

However, with the aid of Serrin, who soon appeared upon the scene, he was located without much trouble and placed under arrest.

Serrin, who comes from Bronthill county, Ky., and claims to be a ward of Judge Hargis, told Appleby that he had made an appointment with Albert at the cabin at 11:30 and the two secured a rig and started for the scene. They had lost track of Kelley who was attending a theatrical performance.

When within a mile of the cabin, the two men fled the rig in a farmer's yard. Serrin started for the place by one route and Appleby chose another. Albert was heard out into the road where Appleby seized and handcuffed him. The party reached Rhineland about five in the morning, breakfasted with Kelley, and got another team.

Rudolph's cabin is located about five miles from the old Donnerstag homestead and had been rented by Mrs. Donnerstag by two trappers—a father and son—named Jones. The officers separated as before, Kelley being left to guard the only avenue of escape, Serrin taking a shortcut through the woods and Appleby driving the team to a point within a mile and a half of the place. Hiding the horses at a convenient place, the latter started through the woods. He had nearly reached the opening where the hut was located when he was intercepted by the eldest of the two trappers, who, after ascertaining his mission, informed him that Rudolph was in the cabin and pleaded with him not to go there as the desperado had said he would kill any man who tried to take him. When Appleby would not be dissuaded, the trapper made him promise that he would not approach the place until he (Jones) could get between Rudolph and the guns.

Some cartridge and revolver which he had tried to use on Appleby, grazed the fleshy part of his right leg and shattered the left one.

Another sister, Anna Donnerstag, who had reached the vicinity of the cabin with Deputy Kelley, witnessed the shooting but paid no attention to the screams of her brother. The flesh was seared so that there was scarcely any loss of blood. At the Rhineland hospital last Friday it was found necessary to amputate Rudolph's leg above the knee joint. Whether or not he will live is very doubtful.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT MEN'S MEETING

Dr. E. C. Loomis Gave a Thoughtful and Convincing Address on Wages of Sin from Medical Standpoint.

"The Wages of Sin is Death," discussed from the medical standpoint, provided a lesson and study of the deepest interest and value at the Men's Meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. building yesterday afternoon. Over 100 men in attendance and Dr. E. C. Loomis in a careful exposition of the effects of alcoholism, neuritis, and the social evil on the individual and the generations which followed him, gave a powerful plea for better habits and morals. Five of the audience spoke on the subject. The orchestra and male quartette rendered several selections. Dr. Loomis, who was to have spoken, was called to the county hospital to perform an operation. Next Sunday Rev. R. C. Denison will tell about his observations of the life and characteristics of the young men of China and Japan.

REGULAR MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

Police Committee Report Tonight Unfavorable to Officer Mason Is Deemed Quite Improbable.

Whether or not the police committee will report tonight on the investigation of Officer Mason, requested by Alderman Carle, is a matter of some doubt. It is altogether unlikely, in any event, that if such report is given it will be unfavorable to the patrolman in question. The regular monthly reports will be heard and routine business transacted. The report to the effect that the patrolman is not giving satisfaction was all news to such officers as could be found at the city hall today.

WANTED A RECEIPT.

He was one of the genuine Tennessee mountain squatters, and after he had brought up a quart of water from the spring back of the house he said:

"Stanger, you are a right smart-looking feller, and I reckon you can read and write."

"Yes, I can do both fairly well," I replied.

"Well, you'd be willin' to do a little squintin' for me?"

"I certainly would."

"Well, young Jim Henslow is in the cabin here. He's been colicin' my gal Linda for a year past."

"But he and Linda has concluded not to hitch up. Fact is, he's struck on another gal."

"And wants to get rid of Linda?"

"That's it. Of couse he kin do so, but havin' agreed to marry her, it's what they call a case of breach-of-promise, ain't it?"

"It sure looks that way."

"Yes, Jim says it does, and he's come over to settle. He's willin' to settle, but he wants a receipt, and none of us kin write one. Will you come inside and do it?"

I went in with him and was introduced to the wife and the young couple, and after writing materials had been provided I sat down and wrote the following, which was duly signed and witnessed and made everybody happy:

"This is to certify that I have let Jim Henslow off from marryin' me for the sum of $2 in cash, and he can marry who he darned please and I won't make him any bother."

HIS BAD PREDICAMENT.

"Gentlemen," said the hardware drummer, "on three different occasions as I passed around among my customers to-day, I have been asked how I was going to vote. I have no doubt that some among you would like to repeat the question, I will answer it by saying that I don't know, though I wished to heaven I did. I am a man who loves his country. I have always wanted to vote for her. After the 15 or 20 presidential nominations had been made I sat down and tried to figure out what was my duty in the case. I could come to no conclusion. I let a month go by, but was yet undecided. Then I went up to Vermont to see my old uncle. His father told me that his mother escaped that for the Continental army, and he himself was wounded 17 times in the Civil War. I knew that he would be right, and that he would vote no right. Half an hour after my arrival we walked out for a talk. I told him of my dilemma. I told him that I didn't want to go wrong in this thing. I told him that it seemed to me to be such a crisis as American liberty had never had before. He listened to me in silence until I was through and then said:

"My dear boy, there is only one candidate for a patriot to vote for—only one man that can save this country from the dangers that menace her. Go to the polls on election day and cast your ballot for—"

"For what?" asked three or four voices in chorus.

"Ah, gentlemen, there's the rub," replied the drummer, with a mournful shake of the head. "Just as my uncle was about to pronounce the name of the nominee a big walnut tree blew over on him and broke every bone in his body, and I was left in the predicament you find me. If I vote I may vote for the wrong man; if I don't vote the country may be lost for the want of my ballot. What do I do? I don't know, but if my true patriot heart should ask me up to the bar—"

He was asked, and it's just possible that America will be here after election day.

The Younger Set

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.

Copyright, 1907, by Robert W. Chambers.

"Yes, didn't you understand?" Do you suppose any other man in the world could have what you have had of me—of my real self? Do you suppose for one instant that any other man than you could ever obtain from me the confidence I offer you unasked? Do I not tell you everything that enters my head and heart? Do you not know that I care for you more than for anybody alive?"

"Gerald!"

She looked him straight in the eyes; her breath caught, but she steadied her voice.

"I've got to be truthful," she said. "I care for you more than for Gerald."

"And I for you more than anybody living," he said.

"Is it true?"

"It is the truth, Elleen."

"You—you make me very happy, Captain Selwyn."

"But did you not know it before I told you?"

"I—yes; I hoped so." In the exultant reaction from the delicious tension of arousal she laughed lightly, not knowing why.

"The pleasure is in it," she said, "in the certainty that I am capable of making you happy. You have no idea how I desire to do it. I've wanted to ever since I knew you—I've wanted to be capable of doing it. And you tell me that I do, and I am utterly and foolishly happy." The quick, mischievous sparkle flashed up, transforming her for an instant. "Ah, yes, and I can make you unhappy, too. It seems, by talking of marriage. That, too, is something—a delightful power—but—the malice dying to a spark in her brilliant eyes—"I shall not torment you, Captain Selwyn. Will it make you happier if I say, 'No, I shall never marry as long as I have you?' Will it really? Then I say it. Never, never will I marry as long as I have your confidence and friendship. But I want it all—every bit, please. And if ever there is another woman—if ever you fall in love—crack away I go—who snatched her white fingers—"like that," she added, "only quicker. Well, then, be very, very careful, my friend. I wish there were some place where I could cut up indefinitely and listen to your vows on life. You brought a book to read, didn't you?"

He gave her a funny, embarrassed glance. "Yes, I brought a sort of book."

"Then I'm all ready to be read to, thank you. Please steady me while I try to stand up on this log. One hand will do."

Seriously in contact with him she crossed the log, sprang blithely to the ground and, lifting the hem of her summer gown an inch or two, picked her way toward the bank above.

"We can see Nina when she signals us from the lawn to come to luncheon," she said, gazing out across the upland toward the silvery tinted hillside, where Silverdale stood, every pane glittering with the white eastern sunlight.

In the dry, sweet grass she found a place for a nest and settled into it, head prone on a heap of scented bay leaves, elbows skyward and fingers linked across her chin.

"What book did you bring?" she asked dreamily.

He turned red. "It's—it's just a chapter from a little book I'm trying to write—a sort of suggestion for the establishment of native regiments in the Philippines. I thought, perhaps, you might not mind listening."

He wrote simply and without self-consciousness. Loyalty aroused her interest, intelligence sustained it, and when the end came it came too quickly for her, and she said so frankly, which delighted him.

"Thank you to the ground! My native and wilder instincts warn me that somebody is coming!" she said.

"Boots and Drina," said Selwyn, and he halted them as they came into view above. Then he sprang to his feet, calling out: "And Gerald too! Hello, old fellow! This is perfectly fine! When did you arrive?"

"Oh, Gerald," cried Elleen, both hands outstretched. "It's splendid of you to come! Dear fellow, have you seen Nina and Austin? And were they not delighted? And you've come to stay, haven't you? There, I won't begin to urge you. Look, Gerald—look, Boots—and Drina, too—only look at those beautiful big plump trout in Captain Selwyn's creel!"

"Oh, I say," exclaimed Gerald, "you don't take those in that little brook, do you, Philip? Well, wouldn't that sure you! I'm coming down here after luncheon. I sure am."

"You will, too, won't you?" asked Drina, jealous lest Boots, her idol, miss his due share of piscatorial glory. "If you'll wait until I finish my French I'll come with you."

"Of course I will," said Lamsing promptly. "You don't suppose there's any fun anywhere for me without you, do you?"

"No," said Drina simply. "I don't."

Selwyn turned to Gerald. "I hunted high and low for you before I came to Silverdale. You found my note?"

"Yes, I'll explain later," said the boy, coloring. "Come ahead, Elly; Boots and I will take you on to Temple—and Philip too. We've an hour or so before luncheon. Is it a go?"

"Certainly," replied his sister, unaware of Selwyn's proclivity, but loyal even in doubt. And the five, walking abreast, moved off across the uplands toward the green lawn of Silverdale, where, under a gay lawn parasol, Nina sat, a "nature book" in hand, the center of an attentive gathering composed of dogs, children and the cat, Mr. K.

Chapter 18

DRINA'S relations with Lamsing afforded infinite amusement to the Gerald. It had been a desperate case from the very first, and the child took it so seriously and considered her claim on Boots so absolute that neither that young man nor anybody else dared make a jest of the affair within her hearing.

Otherwise she was the same active, sociable, wholesome, intelligent child, charmingly casual and inconsistent, and the list of her youthful admirers at dancing school and parties required the alphabetical classification of Mr. Lamsing.

But Boots was her own particular possession. He was her chattel, her thing, and he and other people knew that it was no light affair to meddle with the personal property of Drina Gerald.

Elleen, one bare arm around her brother's shoulders, strolled homeward across the lawn, switching the shaven head with her tennis bat.

"What are you doing this afternoon?" she said to Selwyn. "Gerald"—she touched her brother's smooth cheek—"means to dash. Boots and Drina are down on it, too, and Nina is driving to Wyomsett with the children."

"And you?" he asked, smiling.

"Whatever you wish," confident that he wanted her, whatever he had on hand.

"I ought to walk over to Storm head," he said, "and get things straightened out."

"Your laboratory?" asked Gerald.

"Austin told me when I saw him in town that you were going to have the cottage on Storm head to make powder in."

"Only in minute quantities, Gerald," explained Selwyn. "I just want to try a few things. And if they turn out all right what do you say to taking a look in—if Austin approves?"

"Oh, please, Gerald," whispered his sister.

"Do you really believe there is anything in it?" asked the boy. "Because, if you are sure—"

"There certainly is if I can prove that my powder is able to resist heat, cold and moisture. The Lamsing people stand ready to talk matters over as soon as I am satisfied. There's plenty of time, but keep the suggestion in the back of your head, Gerald."

WELL KNOWN IRON MAN IS A SUICIDE

WALWORTH H. TAPPAN BLOWS OUT HIS BRAINS.

SICK AND DESPONDENT

Resident of Louisville Takes His Own Life in a New York Hotel—Wife Had Feared a Tragedy.

New York, Nov. 9.—Walworth H. Tappan, well-known in the iron and steel trade of the south and middle west, who lived in Louisville, Ky., blew his brains out Sunday night in the washroom of the Hotel Savoy, a fifth avenue hostelry. The report of the shot was heard throughout the lower part of the hotel and created great excitement.

Despondency over a nervous affliction, which was constantly growing worse, is given by his wife as the cause of Tappan's act.

Was with Crane & Co.

Tappan a few years ago was in the iron and steel business in Kentucky. Three years ago he sold his interest there and became attached to the traveling staff of the Chicago firm of Crane & Co., who are in the iron and steel business.

It was quickly established that Tappan's suicide was not caused by financial difficulties as he had recently made profitable stock investments and his friends told the police that he had always received a large salary.

Made Despondent by Illness.

Mrs. Tappan told the police that a few weeks ago Tappan secured a long leave of absence from the firm with which he was connected and came here to undergo a course of treatment for the nervous disease which made him despondent. He and his wife stopped at the Hotel Belmont until last Saturday when rooms were taken in a boarding house. Tappan was not registered at the Hotel Savoy and it is believed he walked into the place when he determined to kill himself.

"I feared my husband might attempt to take his life, so I watched him as closely as I could," said Mrs. Tappan to the police. "He was so troubled about his health that his doctors advised me to remain with him as much as possible. I dreaded something of this nature might happen."

Mrs. Tappan will have the body removed to Louisville for burial.

Do you believe in reincarnation? At her feet. Thus it is reasonable to suppose that, having had royal affluence in a previous incarnation, it would only be natural that she would instinctively seek to identify again with the nobility.

"Birds of a feather will flock together, and in the same way nobles are sure to be attracted to one another. If a woman happens to be a royalist in a past incarnation, and is born again amid plebeian surroundings in the next incarnation it is probable, indeed, that she will feel intuitively that she belongs to a higher strata of society than that in which Karma has seen fit to place her. And so, then a young woman who was an aristocrat in a past life, meets a person of blue blood, she will instinctively feel that she is brushing elbows with one of her own kind." This theory may account for the dreams of many an American heiress, who is simply longing to again mingle in the scenes of her former life. To carry the idea of the theosophists through, it may even be possible that Miss Elkins, or any of the other American girls who have affiliated themselves with foreign nobility, have been united with them in holy wedlock at some prehistoric period.

"The idea of reincarnation is an old as history, and yet, during all these ages, no satisfactory proof has been found for the theories. Many more than have the ideas regarding the other great problems of life. Nobody knows absolutely, and nobody ever will know during this life. While few people today believe in reincarnation, it does as a theory explain many unsolvable riddles as to our likes and dislikes and loves and hatreds of individuals in material things.

social life as mistress of the White house she was accepted as a natural leader, and her wit and personality, which had been acquired in foreign courts, made her a general favorite.

Mrs. Adams was the last of the women of the revolution, for the presidents which followed her were the product of a different period of history and their wives showed other influences. Many had risen from rough beginnings and had married young. In spite of Mrs. Adams' general adaptability to the social surroundings and her great enjoyment of its functions, still her greatest desire was to be done with the responsibilities of the White house and retire with her husband to a quiet life. Mrs. Adams was very fond of dress, and her quality costume, which today seem odd, were quite the dictator of fashions in the Washington social life.

THE PALACE OF THE SHAH AT TERHERAN, PERSIA.

YOUNG PERSIANS ACTIVE IN BEHALF OF THEIR COUNTRY.

War talk has shifted temporarily from the Balkan states to Persia, and though no serious conflict is anticipated in the immediate future, trouble of a very menacing nature is brewing. The recent proposal that Russia intervene in northern Persia to prevent all of Persia falling a prey to anarchy and to safeguard Russia's commercial and other interests in the country is considered premature, even in Russia, and has caused a storm of protest from Persia. While Russia may not at this time attempt to take control of Persia it does, however, contemplate taking some measures to protect Russian subjects and Russian trade. It is now sending additional infantrymen to Tabriz and other northern points. Persia is in the throes of civil war. The young Persians, like the younger Turks, are insistent in their demands for a new and better government, and unofficial reports state that his imperial highness, Valadshah, the present crown prince and son of the present shah, is looked to by the young Persians as their salvation. Valadshah is young, but represents the active interests of the younger generation. Almost daily signs of lawless anarchy are shown at the capital, and much of this centers around the palace where the shah and his young son live.

The young Persians are opposed to anarchy, but are insistent in their demands for a change which they hope will better the condition of the country.

By the Hurricane Route. "He's long wanted to leave the country," says a Billville exchange, "but he never could afford the railroad fare, but just as he had given up all hope a hurricane came along and gave him and his house free transportation. It was providential and he pulled through at last."—Atlantic Constitution.

In the Winter

You do more cooking, and in greater variety, than you do in summer.

It is important, therefore, to properly equip your kitchen now, before the really cold weather has arrived.

With a gas range you are sure of being able to cook anything, and in any amount, with a certainty as to results that is impossible with a coal stove. This is because a gas range can be so perfectly regulated to just the necessary heat, and you are not dependent upon the quality of fuel, the condition of the weather, or the amount of attention you have given your fires.

will make your winter kitchen clean, labor-saving and economical.
